NEWS OF BATTLE CAUSES EXODUS

Newspaper Correspondents Hastening to the Coast.

Want to Get First News of the Conflict—Russians Getting Very Nervous.

RUSSIAN FLEETS ARE UNITED.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—A naval action within a few days is regarded as likely in well-informed naval circles. Admiral Rozhkovsky and Rear Admiral Nebogatoff joined forces May 10. There is reason to believe that the united fleet will proceed northward immediately. No delay was necessary for the purpose of coaling or cleaning Nebogatoff's ships as his division made a stop for this purpose before entering the Straits of Malacca.

Upon the strength of an untraceable rumor an evening paper here got out an extra announcing that a naval battle had commenced, but the admiralty has no confirmation of the report and discredited it.

Expecting Big Naval Battle.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—A dispatch from Harbin states that newspaper correspondents and military attaches following the armies in Manchuria, have departed for the coast. The opinion prevails at Harbin that a battle will be fought in the very near future on the ocean. Correspondents and attaches hastened their departure to be in a position to get first news of the struggle.

Naval Vessel Sunk.

Tokio, May 16.—Ninkomaru, a naval vessel, has gone ashore off Fusan, Korea, but suffered no damage. The Kinkor struck a mine off Port Arthur Thursday night and sank. The crew was rescued and brought to Osaka, Japan.

Fleets Have United.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—The Agency Russ has received a message from Saigon stating that the fleet of Rozhkovsky and Nebogatoff have united.

Much Expectancy Shown.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—About the admiralty office there is a general expectancy that if a naval battle does not occur soon officials say Admiral Togo will keep out of his adversary's way. The junction of the two Russian fleets is regarded as an assured fact.

DOCTORS MEET.

Tomorrow Will Be the Last in the City Until Fall.

The McCracken County Medical society will meet tomorrow night in regular session with Dr. Jeff Robertson and this will be the last meeting to be held in Paducah during the summer.

Court of Appeals Affirms Case of Friedman & Nahn vs. Register.

Frankfort, Ky., May 16.—The court of appeals today affirmed the McCracken circuit court in the case of Nahn & Friedman against the Register Newspaper company.

The appellee company secured a judgment for $1,500 for damages to its plant by reason of the appellants' owners of the building, in which the plant was located, building an additional story to it.

In upholding the judgment the court says "the landlord is under a positive duty to his tenant that he shall have quiet enjoyment of the premises. Chicago, May 16.—A practical armistice in the strike was declared last night, to last until the officers of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters meet here this week. The Teamsters' joint council refused to reconsider the action of Saturday night when it was decided to refuse the demand of the team owners' association that deliveries be made to truck houses. This matter, however, will await the arrival of the teamsters' national officers.

The lumbermen's association last night passed a resolution calling on the teamsters to define their position as to what might be expected when lumber firms called upon them to make deliveries. Drivers who refuse to deliver goods as ordered will be discharged.

The honored class members are Rawleigh Heath who made a percent, of 91 7-10, the highest. He gets the salutatory. Miss Ava McKelney made the next highest percent, 89 9-10, and is the valedictorian. County public schools have a shorter term than city schools and most of them closed two months ago. One school, in district No. 25, was forced to maintain its session two months longer, because of its being closed during the winter while a dispute relative to the site was settled. The matter had to be taken to State Superintendent Fugate for settlement before the school was reopened.

The Indians in the presence of more than a thousand fans yesterday took the second game from the Hoosiers and made it a shutout. The defeat amply repaid for the shunt of Sunday when Little Nonemaker did the stunts in the box for the Hoosiers.

It was not only a pitchers' battle between Piatt Paducah's star boxman, and Duggan, the star of the Hoosier team, but was a battle in which every member of both teams was in the game and in it for all he was worth. It may be truthfully said that so keen was the excitement of the Hoosiers in the fore part of the game that they got a little shaky and made three errors, two to Catcher Farney who muffed two foul flies and one to Third Baseman Barbour who also muffed a foul fly. No harm resulted from these and the Hoosiers settled down to hard, desperate ball playing such as probably will never be beaten on the home diamond.

Paducah scored the only two runs made, in the eighth inning when two men were out, Land hit a hot liner to deep right center and Donovan captured it. The hit should have been a double or triple at the least. Piatt grounded out from Cooper to Wilkerson and McClain gripped his willow hard and swung twice. The fans' hearts were beating fast with expectancy for Little Mack is a hitter and generally leads off when there is something doing. Sure enough he connected and away went the ball to right field. Mack stole second and Gilligan placed a liner straight to left center and McClain scored. Gilligan going to second on the throw. Taylor struck a hot one to Cooper, who threw wild, Wilkerson losing the ball and Gilligan scoring. Taylor tried to make second but was thrown out. The scene in the grandstand was indescribable in its wildness.

The Hoosiers had one more hit and tried hard to even the lead but failed through excellent fielding. Cooper hit a single to center and Hahn duplicated Cooper's feat to right. Barbour fanned and Wilkerson put a hot one to Potts who picked it up, touched Hahn and kept the sphere to first, completing a fast double.

Henderson Won.

Henderson, Ky., May 16.—Morgan outpitched Brown and the local won an exciting and well-played game from the Hoptown organization. The score:

Eskstone, the man who pitched the first of the game Sunday, has been Batteries, Morgan and DeWesse; Brown and Sehan. Umpire, Kelfer.

Eskestone, the man who pitched the first of the game Sunday, has been handed his release by Manager McCarthy. Eck goes with the good wishes of the fans, despite the fact that he is in a measure responsible for the loss of the game Sunday. He is a conscientious player and is sincere in his efforts to win the game in which he is pitching. It is said that he has an opportunity to sign with either Paducah or Vincennes. Calro Hulteth.

Potts and McClain both pilfered bases yesterday, and McClain's steal was opportune.

Gilligan placed the hit which won the game just where it should have been.

Taylor hit a triple in the first inning with two out, but no hits followed and the little man died on that sack.

Three errors to the visitors were for muffed foul flies.

The wrangle in one inning with Zinkins was caused by a runner running past third sack and being stopped by a coacher. The rules prohibit this and had "Zin" seen it he would have called the runner out.

Cooper didn't hit in the first game, but got two the second and two the third. He is the hitter of the Hoosier team.

Frakes pitches today at Calro.

The Indians went down to Calro on the Fowler this morning.

The Hoosiers went to Hopkinsville last night at 8:30 o'clock.

One fan swallowed a quid of tobacco when McClain scored yesterday.

Gilligan and McClain know how to go into a bag, and had Gilligan not been possessed of this knowledge, he would have been retired at home in the eighth when he made the second run.

The Vincennes sports claim they dropped only $620 but local sports say it was over $3,000.

One Paducah sport failed to get much Vincennes "cush" and even offered to loan one $500 if he would put it up on Vincennes.

Amateur Game.

Princeton, Ky., May 16.—Princeton won the second game of the season from the Paducah Central by a score of 7 to 2. The features of the game were the playing of Greer on first, and the pitching of Stevens for Princeton.

HOT TIMES AHEAD

PADUCAH AND CALRO MIX IT UP FOR SIX GAMES NOW.

Holycross and Frakes to Be the Opposing Pitchers in Today's Game.

Holycross will pitch today for Calro and Frakes for Paducah. The Calro sports are wild and it is said they are betting big money on the present series. Both Calro and Paducah have played all the clubs in the league except each other, and the next six games will be between these inveterate rivals.

It is believed that Paducah can get at least five out of the six games, as we defeated Vincennes 2 out of three games, and Vincennes defeated Calro three straight.

Here are a few extracts from today's Bulletin, showing how the fans are worked up down there:

"Cummings' Indian congress and Buffalo Bill's Wild West will not be in the running at all with the blood curdling exhibition of scalp taking (or efforts in that direction) which will take place at 'Fan's Home' in the north end of the city this day. All the fans have to say is that if Holycross recieves the support that Ashley did yesterday there will be nothing but wigs dangling from the belts of the Indians at the close of the game. And if such work continues, they will find it a hard matter to ever gather a real live, bleeding scalp from the Indians which they may hang on exhibition at the top of their wigwag.

"Holycross will puzzle the Indians today. Opposing him will in all probability be Brubie, the youngest of the Paducah staff, who is said to be next to Piatt in the opinion of the fans of the sister city. With these two slab artists pitting their strength and energy against each other the fans will have all they can do to keep pace with the game. Better go."

TWO MURDERERS WERE RECAPTURED

Jim Cowan, White, and Will Proctor, Colored, in Jail.

Southland Fugitives Went Up the River and Were Caught at Casey-ville, 48 Miles Away.

WELLS WENT TO OWENSBORO

Jim Cowan, white, and Will Proctor, colored, two of the alleged murderers who escaped from jail at Southland, Ky., and were today brought down to Southland on the packet John S. Hopkins, and landed in jail.

John Wells, the other alleged murderer who got out, is said to have gone on to Owensboro, and it is believed he will soon be apprehended.

The men seem to have set out to escape in a very stupid sort of way. They stole a skiff after getting out of prison and attempted to go up the river which would require strong pulling, instead of floating down. They were all weak, according to report, from their confinement and arduous work in being out, and were unable to make much progress.

They stuck together until they reached Caseyville, which is 48 miles above Southland, and were recognized by the marshal there.

John Wells is said to have proceeded to Owensboro, and it is believed he will soon be in the toils. The officers of Southland were somewhat surprised to find that the men had gotten no further away. A stick criminal, or most men with a charge of murder hanging over their heads, would have hidden out if necessary for several weeks until they could get well away from the scene of their crime.

The prisoners had little to say in regard to their escape. The white man seemed cheerful, but the negro was morose and uncommunicative when put back in jail at Southland today.

USE OF DREDGES

IS PROPOSED TO TEMPORARILY
ASSIST IN OHIO-RIVER
WORK.

It is Possible the Dredges Will Be Ordered Sent to the Lower Ohio.

Those who are taking an interest in the improvement of the Ohio river feel that the work of effecting a nine-foot stage in the river from Pittsburgh to Cairo will take some years and they feel that much temporary good could be done at the lower end of the Ohio from Louisville to Cairo, by using the two big Mississippi dredges which are now lying idle, says the Courier-Journal. With these dredges they say a six-foot channel could be secured which would permit the passage of comfortable sized boats.

The Mississippi dredges are said to be immense machines which dig up the sand from the bed of the river and cast it high up on the shore. These machines have never been used on the Ohio river. They are now lying idle in the Mississippi and will continue to be idle until fall.

Members of the committee appointed to meet the congressional committee will probably call their attention to this feature of the river's needs and it is likely that the congressional committee will be asked to do what it can to have the dredges sent to the lower Ohio. They could be put in service for about six months and do much practical work, the local committee believes.

"None can ever rise above his aim."

The Weather.

Generally fair tonight and Wednesday, with moderate temperature.

BANISH THE COW.

The cow ordinance is expected to come up tonight for a vote in the council. For several years at irregular intervals an effort has been made by progressive, unselfish citizens, to keep cows off the streets. Those opposed to the ordinance usually screen themselves behind the misleading plea that it is an effort to deprive the widow and poor man of their cows. It is nothing of the sort. It is not an effort to deprive anyone of anything, but an effort to restore people who like clean, healthful streets and pretty yards, to their right of enjoying them without invasion from someone's cow. The cow ordinance will deprive no one of his or her cow. It will simply require him to keep his cow off the streets where she belongs, which no fair, reasonable person can object to. It is time for our councilmen to get over such country notions as prompt the defeat of cow ordinances. Paducah is city enough to adopt city ways, and allowing live stock to roam the streets at will is not in keeping with city ways. It is to be hoped the council will do what is right, and vote to keep cows off the street.

It should be very gratifying to the people of Paducah to note the growing efficiency of our public schools. Under the management of Supt. Leith they are rapidly taking their place among the most complete and up-to-date schools to be found anywhere. Obviously this is a result that cannot be brought about in a day but the progress towards this end has been rapid. Supt. Leith is effectively an energetic, up-to-date man, and is thoroughly familiar with every phase of school work and with the best and quickest means of attaining the end in view—that of giving the people the best possible schools for the money expended. Realizing all this, the board of education could do no better than it has thus far done—concur as far as possible in all his recommendations. No feature of municipal work is of more importance than education, and Paducah is rapidly forging to the front ranks in it.

The board of public works which had passed in the general council an ordinance prohibiting the sweeping of trash and dust from stores, has evidently forgotten all about it, as there has never at any time been any attention paid to it. Any morning a person can walk down Broadway and even if he succeeds in dodging divers and sundry sweepers, he is more than likely to get his eyes, nose and mouth full of sticky dust. Some claim that only the pavements are swept. This is a mistake. The daily accumulation of trash and dirt is swept out of many stores every day, and there has never been a single warrant sworn out for it. Of all the minor offenses, none is more disagreeable or unhealthful than this sweeping of dust and disease germs onto the streets and directly into the faces of helpless citizens.

When the legislative boards act on the telephone franchise ordinance, all they are expected to do is to vote in a fair, business-like way. Honest people do not want telephones for nothing, and do not want any law passed that will compel any sort of a public utility to furnish service at ruinous rates. Honest people want every business to yield a fair profit, just as they want their own to, and want to pay a fair price for what they get. Any ordinance tending to operate otherwise will be wrong, and will indicate an unfairness that no councilman would want applied to himself and his own business.

The first suit decided in circuit court against the owner of a "Red Devil", ought to be very encouraging to those who have a penchant for filing suits against owners of automobiles, as the two defendants were awarded the large sum of $1 and $6 each. It would be cheaper for people to train their horses up to the necessities of the "auto age."

While the lightning-rod man has become out of date, a peddler of storm cellars could do a land-office business in the west just now.

It may be many years before the nine-foot stage in the Ohio is secured, but no one can deny that we have a good start.

The Russian fleet is seen about as often as the sea serpent, but what has become of the Japs?

This time tomorrow we shall probably know the fate of the cow ordinance.

TWO HUNDRED AND EIGHTY COWS HERE

At Least Only This Many Have Been Listed for Taxation.

Average Value is $10—Many Listed at $5—School Ordinance Veto Will Be Sustained It Appears.

OTHER MINOR CITY MATTERS.

The number of cows now listed for taxation in Paducah, according to figures prepared by City Auditor Alexander Kirkland, is 280, which includes those of all the dairymen. Colored people have listed but ten cows. The average value of the cows assessed is $10. Many of them are listed at $5, while some are worth $20 or more.

Under the present charter the law makes it imperative on the property owner to list all his taxable property, and if the cows owned in Paducah have not been assessed, it is the fault of the owner, for which he may be called to account. Formerly it was the business of the assessor to find and list all property, but under this charter it is the duty of the property owner to go to the assessor's office and file his list and make affidavit to it.

The number of cows now assessed, however, is much larger than a few years ago, when only two or three cows on an average were listed.

The above, however, shows how unjust it is for a few cow owners to attempt to prevent the passage of a stock law. Only a few, if any, are benefited by allowing cows to run at large and forage around in other people's yards, while the whole community will be benefited by keeping them up.

It is said, however, that the cow ordinance will easily pass tonight. There were eight votes before, and at least one of the councilmen who voted against it last time, states that if his vote is necessary he will vote for the ordinance tonight.

The ordinance repealing that portion of the license ordinance giving the mayor the power to revoke saloon licenses for Sunday violation, will be voted tonight by Mayor Yeiser, and the council will sustain him. The vote before was 7 for, to 5 against the repeal, and another vote would be necessary in order to get two-thirds of the board and pass the measure over the mayor's veto. It is said on apparently good authority that instead of getting this necessary vote, the faction that favors the repeal has lost one, as one of the members who voted for the repeal before, is now against it, and will vote to sustain the mayor.

There are two "ponds" or lakes near Eighth and Harrison streets which cause much complaint among the residents. The nuisance is especially bad in warm weather, and the residents say they have appealed to both the health authorities, the street inspector and other city officials, but to no avail. The ponds are near the big school building, and contaminate air that has to be breathed by hundreds of children every day. This morning some of the disgusted people in the neighborhood put up a sign, "No Fishing," and then set out a number of flimsy representing fishing poles, with strings attached to them. They are loud in their denunciation of the manner in which the city allows the disease-breeding places to remain.

The regular meeting of the board of public works has been postponed from Wednesday to Thursday afternoon this week, on account of Capt. S. A. Fowler and President Ed. P. Noble going to Cairo with the rivers and harbors committee.

A license inspector will be elected by the general council one night this week. It is expected. There are several applicants for the place and Mayor Yeiser will call a joint meeting of the two boards sometime during the week to elect the late Inspector Ed. Clark's successor.

The councilmanic board held a brief meeting last night adjourning until tonight on account of the carnival. The regular business will be taken up this evening.

The hospital board met Saturday afternoon and awarded contracts for furnishing the new hospital as stated in the Sun yesterday, and if the mayor wants to see the names of the successful bidders he can do so by calling at this office.

Tonight a recommendation will be made to the council to employ at once a wire inspector suitable to the board.

Taking An Inventory.

Attorney C. C. Ranshaw and Mr. Charles Brown, with appraisers, are working on the inventory of Brown & Shelton stock to make out a schedule of liabilities and assets and will file it sometime today. Little can be told of the figures definitely, but it is said that the assets will exceed the liabilities.

HEARST'S LATEST.
He Buys a Magazine to Take Up His Spare Time.
(New York Times.)
William Randolph Hearst sailed for Europe Tuesday for five months of much needed rest and recuperation. Upon his return, in October, he will be found, as they say in the Kansas papers "much refreshed in mind and body, wielding the tripod" in yet another editorial office. That of the Cosmopolitan Magazine.
Mr. Hearst has bought the Cosmopolitan from John H. Walker. He will, it is said, conduct the magazine on the same conservative lines that mark the course of the other Hearst publications and with a single eye to the interests of the plain people.
In the new field Mr. Hearst will find an outlet for his surplus energies and employment for his vacant hours. Hitherto, except for editing his newspapers in New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles, and a weekly paper called Motor, he has had nothing to do but represent the Fifteenth New York district in congress, bring suits against the trusts, and maintain a modest Hearst bureau of promotion and publicity.
Mr. Hearst, will, it is understood, be assisted in the conduct of the Cosmopolitan by Charles Edward Russell, a poet, a Hearstite and an authority on the beef trust; Rudolph Block, who named his first born son William Randolph Hearst, and Willis John Abbott, who has been connected with the Hearst newspapers since 1886.
Judgment was entered in the office of the county clerk Tuesday for $5,123.10 against Representative Chas. A. Towne, in favor of William Randolph Hearst, on a note made by Towne, February 16, 1904, payable in one year.
In his answer Mr. Towne said he was engaged by Hearst to write a series of articles for a newspaper owned by Hearst in Washington, and that the sum of $5,000 which he borrowed was to be applied on account. Mr. Towne says that he is ready and willing to write the articles, and that he has so notified the plaintiff, but that no request has ever been made for the articles.

Dr. H. B. Griffith has returned from Chicago, where he went after his medical instruments and baggage. He sent the instruments there to be put in good condition in every way, and the strike prevented his getting them hauled to the express company's office for shipment. He had finally to go after them, and then the only way he could get them to the depot was by having them carried in the patrol wagon which the police department kindly placed at his disposal upon learning of his trouble, and that he came all the way from Kentucky for them.

TIPS.

Homes within homes. Those who live in furnished rooms—whose homes are within other homes, are said to be the most independent people in the world. They are not "tied down" like other people. When they cease to like the people around them, they move. If the neighborhood is too noisy, or the location "too far out," or the view wearies them, or the service is bad, or there is too little privacy—they publish a "room wanted" ad. In the paper, spend an evening reading the replies, go and look at a few of the places offered, make a decision, pack their trunks and move. The wonder is that any one who lives in a home-within-a-home should be content with a poor one when one want ad. will bring offers of scores of the most desirable ones in the whole city! What is a home-within-a-home without Want advertising?

SALOON BONDS

Will Be Considered by the Council Tonight.

Tonight at the Council meeting Messrs. Friedman and Keller who are named as bondsmen of C. B. Blackhall, E. M. Matlock, Will Greek and Dixon & Allen, will ask the council to release them as such and unless the saloon men get another bond they will have to close their places of business.

It seems that a number of complications have arisen from the signing of bonds and Mayor Yeiser placed the matter in the hands of the plain clothes men to notify the saloon men to have bonds ready.

It is understood they have gotten bondsmen and will present them to-night.

Mr. L. A. Lagomarsino had not signed his bond, but his bondsmen had.

Scott Overton, colored, had not signed himself and his bondsmen had not signed, and it was said at the city hall that he will be warranted this afternoon for selling without a license.

VEHICLES COLLIDE AND INJURE ONE

Mr. E. E. Roark Thrown Out of An Express Wagon.

Little Girl Run Over by a Wagon in the West End Yesterday Afternoon Late and Hurt.

AND A FEW OTHER MISHAPS

E. E. Roark, a painter employed by Walter Pell, of North Fifth street, was injured this morning in an accident near Fifth and Adams streets.

The Palmer Transfer Co. hired a coach driven by Harry Hudson, colored, and an express wagon driven by Dave Vance, colored, collided, and a rear wheel on the smaller vehicle was torn off. Roark was seated in the express wagon with his back to the driver and did not see the bus coming and when the crash came was unprepared. He was thrown to the ground and his head injured.

The accident, it is said, is due to the failure of Vance to drive over and make room for the bus. A wagon was to the right of the bus and Hudson attempted to drive between the wagon and coming express and says the expressman did not give him room, refusing to pull over to one side. The rear wheels of both vehicles met and one end of the express wagon was let down on the ground.

Roark did not seem to be badly hurt and walked home, but later a doctor was called and found him suffering from concussion. He is not thought to be seriously injured, however.

Ida West, aged six years, the daughter of Mrs. Sallie West, who lives with her sister, Mrs. Henry Harris, 1050 Madison street, was accidentally knocked down by a horse in front of the residence yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, but not badly injured.

The little girl had gone out in the street to pick up some pennies and jumped aside to avoid a street car. Directly behind the car came a trap, the horse was driven by Mrs. William Reed, and before the horse could be stopped the little girl was struck and knocked down. The animal stepped on her left knee and bruised it badly.

This morning the little is a little sore, but not fractured or injured other than mere bruises. The escape from a broken limb or more serious injuries was very narrow.

A double team belonging to Mr. Oscar Broyles, of the Mayfield road, ran away with his milk wagon yesterday afternoon on Tennessee street and ran to Eden's Hill. In the runaway a telephone pole was struck and the milk wagon partially demolished. Milk was spilled and cans dented and burst and one horse was injured but not permanently it is thought.

Hud Collar Bone Broken.
Dr. Wm. S. Robinson's twelve-year-old daughter was yesterday afternoon attending a birthday party near her home at 626 North 12th street, when she fell and broke her collar bone. Her father, assisted by Dr. W. T. Graves, dressed the injury.

MORTUARY SNARE
Found Comfortably Coiled About a "King Pin" of a Freight Car.

Here is one of the early snake stories and it comes straight, the snake in question being on exhibition at the I. C. shops.

Jacking track men went to lift up a "lead order" car and take out the king pin which holds the truck in the car. There are two frames, one on top of the truck and on the bottom of the car which come together and leave an opening six inches high which enables the carmen to take out the king pin when cars are required. The cars were jacked up and Mr. Olive Sutherland ran his hand in to take out the pin. He felt something very peculiar and looking more carefully found that he had touched a big highland moccasin snake which was coiled about the king pin.

How the snake ever got around the pin is a mystery but he was killed and measured over four feet long. The reptile was tied up and was hanging at the jacking track road box this morning when a reporter passed.

Thinks Her Cow Stolen.
Mrs. Craft, of Tennessee street, reported to police headquarters this morning that her cow remained out all last night and she feared the bovine had been stolen. She stated that one week ago a negro attempted to drive the cow from the gate and was prevented by interference. She thinks the negro might have stolen and disposed of the cow. The police will look into the matter.

It has been found that London pouter is being extensively adulterated with copperas, which gives the poorer a "head," with the additional advantage of making the consumer very thirsty.

RIVER NEWS

The Gallipolis correspondent of the St. Louis Waterways Journal says: "The wharfage question is still agitating the minds of the packet owners. An effort will be made to secure free wharfage at many of the towns along the river. Point Pleasant, W. Va., with a new wharf and an excellent wharf, is one of the first to come to the front and present the packets with free wharfage. Gallipolis is a river town that depends much upon the packets for business. It makes a great difference to the merchants here when the river trade ceases. The wharfage bills of the Pomeroy and Cincinnati packets last year were over $11,000, more by considerable than they were able to pay. A wharfmaster in a town not thirty miles from Gallipolis had the hard gall to ask Manager Greene of the Greene Line, to pay his wharfage ten years in advance, as he needed the money. He got it—nil. The steamboats have several times over paid for every wharf between Pittsburgh and Cairo in wharfage fees, so we are informed, and while competition has decreased their earnings, wharfage has increased. It does not look like a good idea to kill off the steamboats as competitors to the railroads. Freight and passenger rates between Pittsburgh and Cairo are the cheapest in the world, but such would not be the case if the railroads had no competitors."

Gauge today 20.1, a rise of 3.6. This is the "June rise," arrived ahead of time, and considerable more water is expected. The rise here last night was quite large for one night.

The Dick Fowler left at 8 a. m. today for Cairo with a good trip.

The John S. Hopkins was the Evansville packet today.

Capt. S. A. Fowler left by rail last night for Evansville to join the river and harbor committee party on the Queen City, and accompany it to Paducah.

Mr. L. Wynum, of the combine's Cairo office, is in the city today on business.

The Clyde arrived at 5 p. m. yesterday and remains until tomorrow night, when she returns up Tennessee river.

The Charleston leaves this evening for Tennessee river, and is getting a good trip.

The Royal arrived this morning and left for Goldsboro again this afternoon.

Mr. Russell Gardner and party left at 8 a. m. today for Cumberland river on the Annie Russell, which will go up about Humphreys, Tenn., above Nashville.

The Georgia Lee is here to go up the ways. She will probably be here three weeks, at least.

The City of Savannah is due today from St. Louis for Tennessee river.

The Russell Lord arrived today from Mississippi river.

The Pavonia leaves this afternoon for Cumberland river.

The Castalia will probably depart sometime today for Mississippi river.

A Cincinnati dispatch says: "It is stated here that a special subcommittee of the river and harbor committee named by Chairman Hottel will take a trip down the Illinois river, leaving Chicago Thursday morning. During the trip the last four miles now being constructed on the Chicago drainage canal will be inspected. The real object of the trip is to enquire into the feasibility of constructing a 14 foot draught ship canal from the end of the drainage canal to St. Louis."

Mrs. McClain's Funeral.
The funeral of the late Mrs. John R. McClain, of 23rd and Washington streets took place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Broadway Methodist church, Rev. T. J. Newell officiating.

She was 61 years old and leaves one son, Mr. Charles McClain, and an adopted daughter, Miss How McClain, besides her husband, Mr. J. R. McClain, of the St. Bernard Coal Co. Her three brothers are Rev. Stephen Campbell, of Russellville, Mo.; Charles Campbell, of Woodville, and John Campbell, of Ingleside. Mesdames Walter Hurre and Oscar Long, of Mayfield, are sisters.

The pallbearers were C. E. Jennings, Doc Hyatt, J. M. Hyrd, H. F. Williamson, W. A. Gardner and C. W. Morrison.

Pay Car Here Today.
The I. C. pay car arrived in Paducah this morning about 10:30 o'clock and all employees are being paid off. Merchants will as usual keep open tonight but little business is expected because of the carnival. It will be a big night at the carnival grounds.

SIR HENRY MORGAN, BUCCANEER

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY,

Author of "The Southerners," "For Love of Country," "The Grip of Honor," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1903, BY C. W. BILLINGHAM COMPANY

He was confident that he had the backing of the men and in that confidence grew bold with reckless temerity. Flashed by the victory of the morning, the rum he had imbibed, intoxicated by the thought of the treasure which was to be shared, the man went on impudently:

"No, Sir Harry Morgan, we've decided to follow our latest plan. We'll work this ship up to the New England coast and wreck her there. There are plenty of spots where she can be cast away safely and none to know it. We'll obey you there and no farther. We've got enough treasure under hatches to satisfy any reasonable man. We're not interested in the thing if you are."

"You fool!" thundered Morgan. "You will be tangled as soon as your part in the adventure is known."

"And who is to make it known, pray?" As who said, were poor ignorant men. It's nothing to us if you are marked, and you—and you," he continued, stepping forward and pointing successively at Morgan and the little band of officers who surrounded him. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, we'd have you understand, and we're content with what we've got. We don't want to further cruising. There's no need for us to land on the Spanish main. We've made up our minds to 'bolt ship and bow away to the northward. Am I right, mates?"

"Aye, aye! Right you are!" roared the men, surging up.

"You mutinous lound!" yelled Morgan, leaping forward in a perfect fury of rage, and his passion was something appalling to look upon.

Hornigold clutched at the helm, which had been deserted by the seamen detailed to it during the course of the hot debate. The old man cast one long, anxious glance to windward, where a black squall was apparently brewing. But he said nothing. The argument was between Morgan and his crew; there was no need for him to interfere. Teach, Havenshaw, Velsers and the others drew their pistols and bared their swords, but most of the crew were also armed, and if it came to a trial of strength the cabin gang was so overwhelmingly outnumbered that it would have been futile to inaugurate a contest.

Morgan, however, was frantic with rage. He did not hesitate a second. He rushed at Master Bartholomew Sawkins, and, brave man as that sailor was, he fairly quailed before the terrific incantation of passionate fury his captain presented. The rest of the crew gave back before the furious onset of Sir Henry.

"You dog!" he screamed, and before the other realized his intention he struck him a fearful blow in the face with his naked fist. Always a man of unusual strength, his rage had bestowed upon him a herculean force. He seized the dazed man by the throat and waist and heaved him to the deck from the force of the blow and, lifting him up, literally pitched him overboard. Before the crew had recovered from their astonishment and terror at this bold action the buccaneer officers closed behind their captain, each covering the front ranks of the men with a pistol. At the same instant the other men, Hingrose's crew, came surging through the crowd, snatching such arms as they could in the passage, although most of them had to be satisfied with belaying pins.

"We're with you, Captain Morgan," cried one of their number. "We've had no treasure, and it seems we're not to have a share in this either. We've been in the south seas," continued the speaker, a man named L'Olonois, noted for his cruelty, rapacity and success, "and the captain speaks truly. There are all that can delight brave men and a race of cowards to defend them."

The man who had been thrown overboard had shrieked for help as he fell. The splash he had made as he struck the water had been followed by another. A Spanish priest standing by the rail had seized a grating and thrown it to the man. Morgan took in the situation in a glance.

"Who threw that grating?" he cried.

"I, senior," composedly answered the priest, who understood English.

Morgan instantly snatched a pistol from De Lussan's hand and shot the man dead.

"I allow no one," he shouted, "to interfere between me and the discipline."

Shot the man dead

of my men! You speak well, L'Olonois. And for you, homies," he roared, clubbing the smoking pistol and stepping toward the huddled, frightened men, "get back to your duties unless you wish instant death! Settle me, if I don't blow up the galleon unless you immediately obey! Bear a hand there! If you hesitate—Fire on them!" he cried to his officers. But the men in the front did not linger. They broke away from his presence so vehemently that they fell over one another in the gangways.

"Don't fire!" they cried in terror.

"We'll go back to duty!"

Morgan was completely master of the situation.

"I am to be obeyed," he cried, "implicitly, without question, without hesitation!"

"Aye, aye!"

"We will! We will!"

"That's well. Heave that cannon overboard," kicking the body of the priest. "Now we'll go back and pick up Sawkins," he continued. "Ready about! Station for staves!"

"Look you, Captain Morgan," cried Hornigold, pointing to leeward. "The squall! 'Twill be soon on us! We'd best reduce sail and run for it!"

"Nay," said Morgan. "I'll allow not even a storm to interfere with my plans. Flaw the lead sheets there! Hard down with the helm! Aft here, some of you, and man the quarter boat! I said, I'd pick him up, and picked up he shall be!"

The ship, like all Spanish ships, was unhandy and a poor sailer. Morgan, however, got all out of her that mortal man could get. With nice seamanship he threw her up into the wind, hove her to and dropped a boat overboard. Teach had volunteered for the perilous command of her, and the best men on the ship were at the oars. Sawkins had managed to catch the grating and was clinging feebly when the boat swept down upon him. They dragged him aboard and then turned to the ship. The sinister squall was rushing down upon them from the black horizon with terrible velocity. The men bent their backs and strained at the oars as never before. It did not seem possible that they could beat the wind. The men on the ship brought Morgan to fill away and abandon their comrades.

"No!" he cried. "I sent them there, and I'll wait for them if I sink the ship!"

Urged by young Teach to exertion superhuman, the boat actually shot under the quarter of the galleon before the squall broke. The tackles were hooked on, and she was run up to the davits with all her crew aboard.

"Up with the helm!" cried Morgan the instant the boat was alongside. "Swing the mainyard and get the canvas off her! Aloft, topmen! Settle away the balyards! Clew down! Live, now!"

And as the ship slowly paid off and gathered way the white squall broke upon them. The sea was a smoother with mist and rain. The wind whipped through the shrouds and rigging, but everything held. Taking a great bone in her mouth, the old Almirante Hecinde heeled far over to leeward and ripped through the water to the southward at such a pace as she had never made before. On the quarter deck a drenched, shivering and sobbing figure knelt at Morgan's feet and kissed his hand.

"With obey me in the future!" cried the captain to the repentant man.

"For God, I will, sir," answered Sawkins.

"That's well," said the old buccaneer. "Take him forward, men, and let him have all the rum he wants to take out the chill of his wetting."

"You stood by me that time, Sir Henry," cried young Teach, who had been told of Morgan's refusal to fill away, "and by heaven I'll stand by you in your need!"

"Good! I'll remember that," answered Morgan.

"What's our course now, captain?" asked Hornigold as soon as the incident was over.

"Sou'west by west half west," answered Morgan, who had taken an observation that noon, glancing in the binoculars as he spoke.

"And that will fetch us where?" asked the old man, who was charged with the duty of the practical sailing of the ship.

"To La Guayra and Venezuela."

"Oho!" said the old boatswain. "St. Jago de Leon, Caracas, Cother side of the mountains, will be our prize?"

"Aye," answered Morgan. "It's a rich place and has been unlooted for a hundred years."

CHAPTER VIII.

TWO days later they made a landfall off the terrible coast of Caracas, where the tree clad mountains soar into the clouds abruptly from the level of the sea, where the surf beats without intermission even in the most peaceful weather upon the narrow strip of white sand which separates the blue waters of the Caribbean from the massive cliffs that tower above them.

In the intervening time the south sea buccaneers had picked up wonderfully. These men, allured by the hope of further plunder under a captain who had been so signally successful in the past and in the present, constituted a most formidable auxiliary to Morgan's original crew. Indeed, with the exception of the old hands, they were the best of the lot. L'Olonois had been admitted among the officers on a suitable footing, and there was little or no friction among the crews. They were getting humored into shape, too, under Morgan's hard drilling, and it was a vastly more dangerous body of men than the drunken gang who had sailed from Jamaica.

Like a polite captain, Morgan had done his best to get the men whom he had subdued by his intrepid courage and consummate address into good humor. Rum and spirits were served liberally, work was light—in fact, none except the necessary seaman's duties were required of the men, although an hour or two every day were employed in hard drill with swords, small arms and great guns. In martial exercises the veterans were perfect, and they assiduously endeavored to impart their knowledge to the rest.

It was Morgan's plan to run boldly into La Guayra under the Spanish flag. No one could possibly take the Almirante Hecinde for anything but a Spanish ship. There was no reason for suspecting the presence of an enemy, for Spain had none in these seas. If there were other ships in the roadstead—for the harbor of La Guayra was really nothing more than an open road—the buccaneer could easily dispose of them in their unprepared condition. Indeed, Morgan rather hoped that there might be others, for after he captured them he would have a greater force of guns to train upon the forts of the town, which he expected to take without much difficulty, and then he governed in his maneuvers toward Caracas by circumstances as they arose.

Two days after the capture of the galleon, then, with the wind fresh from the northeast, on a gray, threatening morning, she was running to the westward along the shore. A few hours at their present speed would bring them opposite La Guayra, whose location at the foot of the mighty La Silla of Caracas was even then discernible. Morgan could see that there were two or three other vessels opposite the town straining at their anchors in the heavy sea. Every preparation for action had been made in good time, and the guns had been loaded. The sea heaving had been cast off, although the gun tackles were carefully secured, for the wind was blowing fresher and the sea running heavier every hour.

The men were armed to the teeth. They happened to be a goodly supply of arms on the Spanish ship, in addition to those the buccaneers had brought with them, which were all distributed.

A Curse Removed From Mother and Baby

Two Cured in One Family.

Your Dr. D. D. remedy is certainly a wonderful medicine, for we have used it in our family with great success. My wife suffered with a severe case of Eczema on her face, which soon spread until it covered all her face. Soon her eyes began to swell so much she could not hold them open, and her face burned as if on fire. When my baby was about a year old it contracted a similar case. I could not bear to see them suffer and at once procured a bottle of Dr. D. D. The relief it gave them was wonderful and I could see them both improve with each application. In three weeks' time they were both cured completely, and what has proved permanent. Hoping that you can show this to some one who is looking for a cure for Eczema, and if they have any doubts about it have them write me.

ALBERT MULDER.

Puritan, Ohio, May 18, 1903.

Reader! This is more than medicine talk. It is humanity to suffering sufferers about this. The most virulent skin diseases are conquered—every time—in all cases—without any exception—all cleared away in a few weeks—by the brilliantly clever new skin prescription.

D. D. D.

Its work is hardly equaled by any other wonder of modern medical practice.

WE GUARANTEE THIS TO BE TRUE.

Though has been proven to us—repeatedly—the above case and hundreds of others—to demonstrate beyond all question whatever that any of the known forms of this disease—any eruption or breaking out—must quickly give way and disappear under the influence of this prescription (known as "D. D. D."). Cases of Eczema, Salt Rheum, Ring Worm, Psoriasis, Barber's Itch, Acne, etc., some of twenty years' standing have been cleared off and permanently cured in a few weeks. In many cases from one to two years have elapsed and there has been no returning sign of the disease. Hundreds of cases cured since the prescription was placed on sale show no sign at all of the previous affliction, and we fully believe they are permanent cures.

WOODMEN OF WORLD

Adopt an Important Amendment to the Constitution.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 16.—The Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, has fixed Thursday as the date of final adjournment. An important amendment to the constitution of the order was adopted, when the Sovereign commander was given authority to appoint or remove "general, special and local organizers, lecturers and assistants, and to establish their compensation on recommendation of a majority of the head officers of the jurisdiction."

The convention decided to admit brass molders and finishers in the future, this class having heretofore been barred from membership.

On May 22 all the sovereign officers will attend the dedication of a monument in Galveston to the Woodmen who perished in the flood.

The Woodman Circle, the women's auxiliary of the order, decided to erect an $85,000 office building in Omaha as an investment of part of its surplus revenue.

DIRE PREDICTIONS

Are Made by New York Astrologer, Dr. MacDonald.

Dr. J. MacDonald, an astrologer of Birmingham, N. Y., makes some sensational prophecies of great events to take place within the next two years. Among the prophecies is that a portion of New York city will be destroyed by an earthquake sometime during the present year. He says: "The loss of life will be terrible. The shock will be felt at least 200 miles inland. There is a grave possibility that the whole lower half of Manhattan Island will slide down off into the bay." Dr. MacDonald also prophecies the end of Russian-Japanese war during this year, and says that the elements will assist greatly in almost total destruction of the Japs. Japan, he says, will be nearly wiped off the earth by earthquakes and a great tidal wave. He declares that in 1921 the United States will extend from the North to the South pole, and that railroads will be running without interruption from Point Barrow, in Alaska, to Cape San Diego, to Terra del Fuego. He predicts a famine for 1908 throughout the world.

Big Porto Rican Strike Ended.

Washington, May 16.—The strike of fourteen thousand agricultural laborers in Porto Rico is ended, according to a telegram received today by President Gumpers of the American Federation of Labor, from Santiago Iglesias, organizer of the federation. A recent mail report received by Gumpers announced that at that time 8,000 of the fourteen thousand who went on strike four weeks before had secured thirty per cent increase in wages and a nine hour day.

A Positive Necessity.

Having to lay upon my bed for 14 days from a severely bruised leg, I only found relief when I used a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment. AVERTIL.
Over the wind-swept meadows the brown field-lark is singing, laughter lies in the sunlight wide on the happy hill;
Swallows skyward swift on the warm south wind are winging, flocks of wind-kissed waves dimple the face of the ill.
A year, a cycle of long, long days, since we walked together, Spring in the valley, the voices of May in time,
Now again is the month of rain—sweet, changeable weather, And the young, slender moon.

What do I miss from the uplifted ivory chalices
The iris, ebb-bearer, has brought to appease the wrath of a god?
Why is the light grown dim on the heaven-hall far clouded palaces?
Why do the day's young feel go by so heavily shod
That the pace is so slow? Is it yet because unforgotten,
All we swore to forget and to bury in a grave by the hill?
Where shrouded, a passion lay dead, by youth and by folly begotten,
By folly and youth, Avertil!

Yester eve when the stars were out and the moon over the beeches,
The Wanderlust drove me forth to the path by the foot of the hill;
There where we parted, silence; the long, brooding, delicate reaches
Of whispering pines. And I thought of you then, Avertil.

And our dead love rose as I dreamed, a ghost of passionate sweetness:
Red as a vampire's lips as it gazed on me there in the dark,
Tendrils of fire its hair; from its feet of infinite fireness,
Spark after spark:

A terrible ghost to come to a man who is vowed to another woman.
And I question here if ever in all the joy that we knew,
In all the sweetness of our wild love that was more than human,
A ghost of another kind ever came, Avertil, to you,
Then I did not consider all that was his to discover;
Mine was the stolen sweet, and I robbed him of more than life,
He the student reserved, austere;

I was the ardent lover, and you, Avertil? His wife!
Somewhat of all this past comes to me now over and over,
Now that my truth is given and the wedding morn is near;
Am I bringing to her—that pale-faced child—myself a cynical lover
Who holds a buried past instead of a future dear?

Between her pillow and mine will a face laugh warm with roses?
Will a head of shadowy darkness blot out her head of gold?
When her cheek in its virginal fairness against my own reposes,
Will she find mine cold?

I would that the grave could bury that dream and its ghost forever,
And bury the thought of him distorted— who never knew;
For a man's thoughts change. That that love was exquisite, never More can I feel in my heart that a woman will be true.

Avertil, Avertil! Why did you hold life's cup to my lips brimming over,
Knowing the poison that lay in the lees my spirit to ill.
I could forgive you, I could forgive you had I been less your lover,
Less of your life, Avertil.

Now that our dream is over and the door is locked on a chamber
Where ashes of roses scatter a dust that is still perfume,
I must forget the raven's wing and remember the tresses of amber,
Forget the passion-flower and gather the white rose bloom.

I must bend my love as my life to the sterner rule of reason;
And walk no more by the path at the foot of the hill.
And if ever we meet we must never speak lest a thought of the old,
old treason

Should send my heart to my lips and my lips to your own, Avertil!

HOOPSKIRTS COMING.
And Will Soon Be in Style Again, According to Report.

Chicago, May 16.—Hoopskirts again have made their appearance in Chicago. The latest coming out of the antebellum article was at the weekly meeting of the Chicago dressmakers' club at the Stratford hotel. Mrs. M. J. Hosac, president of the club, had a special design of hoopskirt, which she demonstrated on the form of Miss Anna Schubert, a model. "I will show that this hoopskirt is not the old 'Johnnie-Comes-Marching-Home' sort; but, of course, we can't say how far it will develop," said Mrs. Hosac, as she led Miss Anna to a chair and seated her with comfort. Her skirts still on the floor in front. "The old sort, you know, used to fly up in front, but that was before dress-making got to be an art, as it is today. Now we can make hoopskirts supply the 'full effect' around the hips and still leave it possible for the wearer to climb on street cars, get in and out of carriages and do any other thing that it would be possible to do with the other sort of skirts."

The dressmakers say the hoopskirt is going to be all the rage in a short time.

The census of the Indians of Canada last year showed there were in all 127,978, as compared with 128,233 in 1903, a decrease of 255.
